General information on the legal basis for data processing

"Personal data" is any information relating to a specific person. We process this data in accordance with the applicable data protection laws, in particular the DSGVO and the BDSG. We may only process personal data if we have legal permission to do so.

We process personal data only with your consent to enter into a contract with you or to respond to your inquiry in connection with a potential business relationship, to comply with legal obligations or to protect our legitimate interests, provided that this does not adversely affect your interests or fundamental rights and freedoms that require the protection of personal data.

Storage period of personal data

We store your data only for as long as is necessary to achieve the purpose of the processing or to fulfill our contractual or legal obligations, unless otherwise specified in the following notes. Legal storage obligations may result from commercial or tax regulations. After the end of the calendar year in which we collected the data, we will retain personal data contained in our accounting records for ten years and personal data contained in business letters and contracts for six years. Furthermore, we will retain data in connection with consents requiring proof as well as complaints and claims for the duration of the statutory limitation periods. Data stored for advertising purposes will be deleted if you object to processing for this purpose.

Processing when exercising your rights

If you wish to exercise your rights under Articles 15 to 22 of the GDPR, we will process the personal data you have provided in order to implement those rights and to be able to provide evidence thereof. We will process the data stored for the purpose of providing information and preparation exclusively for this purpose and for data protection control purposes and otherwise restrict the processing in accordance with Article 18 of the GDPR.

These processing operations are based on the legal basis of Article 6(1)(c) of the DSGVO in conjunction with Articles 15 to 22 of the DSGVO and Section 34(2) of the BDSG.

Rights of the data subject

The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) guarantees every data subject certain rights in relation to their personal data. These include:

- The right of access: every data subject has the right to obtain confirmation from us as to whether personal data are being processed and to obtain information about these data and further information and copies of these data.
- The right to rectification: Every data subject has the right to request that inaccurate personal data be corrected without delay.
- The right to erasure ("right to be forgotten"): Every data subject has the right to request the erasure of his or her personal data without undue delay.
- The right to restriction of processing: every data subject has the right to request the restriction of the processing of his or her personal data.
- The right to data portability: every data subject has the right to receive the personal data concerning him or her that he or she has provided to us in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format.
- The right to object: Every data subject has the right to object at any time, on grounds relating to his or her particular situation, to the processing of personal data concerning him or her which is carried out on the basis of Article 6(1)(e) or (f) of the GDPR. If personal data concerning the data subject are processed by us for the purpose of direct marketing, the data subject may object to such processing in accordance with Article 21 (2) and (3) DSGVO.

The data subject also has the right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority if he or she believes that the processing of his or her personal data violates the GDPR.

The supervisory authority responsible for us is: Bavarian State Office for Data Protection Supervision

Information about the processing of personal data

Processing framework, purpose and legal basis for processing
